

0 50 100 miles

Gloamwake

being a survey of the region called Seki

Gloamwake

A Gazetteer of Seki

Seki is a scatter of islands and drowned hills. The prevailing winds blow out of the southeast, and the south of the region runs cold. Its folk name their land in the Nai tongue — star + land.

Powers & Fellowships

the Order of the Star — knightly order.
the Guild of Silver — merchant guild.

Cities, Towns & Villages

Snavemu · city

Harbor city of some 34,080 souls, behind a sheltered anchorage; seat of Snavemu March. Its trade runs to salt, grain and fish. A courier from Kluvnguovo was found at the 3-mile stone with empty saddlebags and a full purse.

(black + stead, in the Nai tongue)

Greyharbor · city

Old city of some 33,780 souls, where the land meets the Kriwu Main; seat of the Greyharbormark. Its trade runs to fish, grain and horses. Pilgrims bound for Snavemu have begun arriving with the same dream, told in the same words.

(common tongue: grey + harbor)

Rumusnes · city

Walled city of some 29,760 souls, where the land meets the Kriwu Main; seat of Rumusnesshire. Its trade runs to fish, salt and river trade. A ship out of Stillmill came in crewed by half the men who set out, and the survivors will not speak of the Kriwu Main.

(sea + hold, in the Nai tongue)

Stillmill · town

Market town of some 5,820 souls, astride the Ravenrush; seat of Still Vale. Its trade runs to wool, river trade and grain. Something has been taking sheep on the north road to Kluvnguovo; the shepherds say it walks upright.

(common tongue: still + mill)

Kleithewe · town

Hill town of some 5,760 souls, at a crossing of the Wusnangad; seat of Kleithewe March. Its trade runs to river trade, timber and furs. Something has been taking sheep on the north road to Stillmill; the shepherds say it walks upright.

(deep + stead, in the Nai tongue)

Greenmarket · town

Hill town of some 5,010 souls, at a crossing of River Imeklu; seat of the Green Lands. Its trade runs to river trade, timber and furs. The Guild of Silver has posted a bounty on any traveler's account of the ruins in the Akraskru.

(common tongue: green + market)

Ngagskevo · village

Hamlet of some 820 souls, astride the Wusnangad, in Kleithewe March. Its trade runs to grain, horses and wool. Something has been taking sheep on the northeast road to Stillmill; the shepherds say it walks upright.

(grey + stead, in the Nai tongue)

Lumthue · village

Fishing village of some 740 souls, astride River Niskide, in Kleithewe March. Its trade runs to river trade, timber and furs. A courier from Rumusnes was found at the 8-mile stone with empty saddlebags and a full purse.

(wolf + stead, in the Nai tongue)

Kluvnguovo · village

Village of some 700 souls, astride River Snavad, in the Greyharbormark. Its trade is river trade. A ship out of Greyharbor came in crewed by half the men who set out, and the survivors will not speak of the Kriwu Main.

(white + stead, in the Nai tongue)

Kriwusni · village

Way-station of some 570 souls, where the land meets the Kriwu Main, in the Greyharbormark. Its trade runs to salt, grain and fish. Barges out of Greyharbor have stopped arriving, and the Guild of Silver is paying well to learn why.

(old + stead, in the Nai tongue)

Rivers & Waters

River Imeklu

Rises out of the fens; its waters run 60 miles.

(raven + water, in the Nai tongue)

River Snavad

Rises in the hills and runs 103 miles to the lake country.

(black + water, in the Nai tongue)

the Ravenrush

Rises in the hills and runs 56 miles to the lake country.

(common tongue: raven + water)

the Wusnangad

Rises deep in the woods and runs 70 miles to the lake country.

(silver + water, in the Nai tongue)

River Niskide

Rises in the black pines and runs 105 miles to the sea.

(swift + water, in the Nai tongue)

The Wild Country

the Kriwu Main

The open sea.

(old, in the Nai tongue)

the Hidden Weald

A forest, some 19 miles east of Lumthue.

(common tongue: hidden)

the Ash Expanse

A dry waste, some 23 miles southeast of Kluvnguovo.

(common tongue: ash)

the Still Mire

Fenland, some 12 miles southeast of Greenmarket.

(common tongue: still)

the Broken Tors

A mountain range, some 57 miles southwest of Kleithewe.

(common tongue: broken)

Stillmarsh

Fenland, some 80 miles north of Rumusnes.

(common tongue: still)

the Far Expanse

A dry waste, some 35 miles south of Greenmarket.

(common tongue: far)

the Far Waste

A dry waste, some 61 miles east of Kriwusni.

(common tongue: far)

Silvermere

A lake, some 18 miles north of Ngagskevo.

(common tongue: silver + lake)

the Akraskru

A mountain range, some 71 miles south of Lumthue.

(king + horn, in the Nai tongue)

the Bear Weald

A forest, some 216 miles east of Kluvnguovo.

(common tongue: bear)

the Kogekles

A forest, some 17 miles north of Greenmarket.

(dark + grove, in the Nai tongue)

the Still Fens

Fenland, some 215 miles east of Kluvnguovo.

(common tongue: still)

Lake Deepwater

A lake, some 17 miles west of Greenmarket.

(common tongue: deep + lake)

the Grey Horns

A mountain range, some 66 miles northeast of Lumthue.

(common tongue: grey)

the Ngokrato

A mountain range, some 77 miles northeast of Kluvnguovo.

(high + horn, in the Nai tongue)

Lake Kriwu

A lake, some 14 miles southwest of Greyharbor.

(old, in the Nai tongue)

Lake Kleith

A lake, some 11 miles southeast of Kleithewe.

(deep, in the Nai tongue)

Oldmere

A lake, some 12 miles east of Lumthue.

(common tongue: old + lake)

Lake Stillwater

A lake, some 31 miles southeast of Lumthue.

(common tongue: still + lake)

Lake Klas

A lake, some 13 miles northwest of Lumthue.

(bright, in the Nai tongue)

Of the Nai Tongue

The names on this map are not random letters: the land's own language builds them from roots, and the same root recurs wherever the land repeats itself. Among its words:

klarsneg — “water”

kriwu — “old”

snath — “stone”

klet — “salt”

snamtu — “cold”

lumthu — “wolf”

enov — “home”

kog — “dark”

A settlement often ends in -mu or -vo or -sni or -we (“stead”).

The region calls itself Seki: star + land, in the Nai tongue.

Every part of this survey — coasts, rivers, roads, names, and rumors — was woven from a single seed phrase. The same phrase always weaves the same world; share it, and another hand can hold this exact map.

The phrase of this world is “gloamwake”.