Of the Zazdriish Tongue

The names on this map are not random letters: the land's own language builds them from roots, and the same root recurs wherever the land repeats itself. Among its words:

haf — “water”
crun — “old”
deg — “stone”
nagrad — “salt”
dro — “cold”
dribdre — “wolf”
hu — “home”
shu — “dark”

A settlement often ends in -ned or -rab or -shuj (“stead”).
The region calls itself Bidbirede: green + land, in the Zazdriish tongue.

Every part of this survey — coasts, rivers, roads, names, and rumors — was woven from a single seed phrase. The same phrase always weaves the same world; share it, and another hand can hold this exact map.
The phrase of this world is “The Salt Reaches”.
